BC Rural Centre: Helping Rural Communities Succeed!

Inspire — Share Tools — Cultivate Capacity — Facilitate Action.

Those words nicely summarize the primary purpose of the BC Rural Centre. We want to help fill the information gap that exists in rural BC, as it does in most of rural Canada and the USA. Specifically, we are constantly looking to find — or create — useful, actionable, often inspirational reports, case studies, podcasts, videos, and other tools designed to help rural and First Nations residents make their communities stronger, more resilient.

Don't hesitate to contact us with questions or suggestions — we'd be delighted to hear from you!

Forestry

While forestry remains an important industry in British Columbia, its evolution, driven by a number of factors including technological change and industry consolidation has led to an overall drop in sector employment, and economic hardship in many rural BC communities traditionally highly dependent on forestry operations for tax revenues and employment. While there are no easy fixes, the emergence of Community Forests — locally owned and controlled forest tenures — may prove at least a partial solution for communities looking to stimulate economic activity and exert more control over their immediate environments.

Encouraging & Supporting Community Investment Cooperatives

- For the past decade SIBAC/BC Rural Centre has been promoting the concept of Community Investment Cooperatives
- Why? Business Investment Capital – especially for business start-ups can be difficult to obtain in smaller rural communities
- At same time rural people want the opportunity to invest in their own community
- Over $4.7 Billion invested into RRSPs by BC residents in 2013 alone. Over $1.2 Billion from rural BC residents.

Investment

Finding investment capital is a serious issue. Solutions may lie closer to home than we think. Alberta, Nova Scotia, and the United States have given the opportunity, rural residents want to invest in their communities.

For example, could Community Economic Development serve as a model for rural BC communities? A report suggest the answer is yes.
